

Daniel Whitford

Professional Summary

I'm an Australian professional with over eight years of practical experience working across digital projects, online platforms, and business operations. I began my career supporting small and medium-sized businesses, gradually moving into more complex, multi-market projects that required independence, adaptability, and strong problem-solving skills.

My background is hands-on rather than theoretical. I'm used to learning quickly, figuring things out on the go, and taking responsibility for outcomes. Over the years, I've worked in environments where processes weren't always clearly defined, which helped me become comfortable making decisions, improving workflows, and handling unexpected challenges calmly.

I value clear communication, reliability, and steady progress. I work well independently but also collaborate effectively with distributed teams. I'm detail-oriented without losing sight of the bigger picture, and I prefer practical solutions that deliver consistent results over time.

I'm currently open to remote or hybrid opportunities where I can contribute experience, take ownership of tasks, and be part of a team that values accountability and long-term thinking.

Why Does It Work for Aussies?

It's not just the games; it's the infrastructure. The PWA app means you don't have to deal with clunky app store downloads, and the 128-bit SSL encryption keeps the "bad guys" out. Factor in the 24/7 support and the ability to play in crypto, and it's easy to see why Ricky Casino is still gaining ground in 2026.
